TIPS AND BEST PRACTICES FOR SUCCESSFUL IMPLEMENTATION OF WORKFLOWS

Having a documented workflow can help you organize tasks used to support client-interaction so each event is repeated the same way and all clients and prospects receive a similar customer experience. This package provides a foundational understanding about the Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting workflow so you can assess if the processes you are currently using can be more efficient and systematic.

While this document focuses on helping you create an initial investment plan and conduct a plan review meeting with the client, it also references service, tools, documents, and templates located on the Schwab Advisor Center™ website for advisors working with Schwab Advisor Services.

REGARDING CUSTOMIZATION

Preparation is the key to success. Because each firm is unique, take the time to analyze your current processes, compare them to the processes and resources in this package, and plan any customizations before implementing these workflow steps. The purpose of this workflow package is to help you understand best practices upon which you can build.

INTEGRATION WITH OTHER WORKFLOWS

Some workflows in the Schwab OpenView Workflow Library have relationships to or dependences on other workflows. For this reason, we recommend you download and implement all of the Onboard Client workflows along with the Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting workflow to realize the fullest benefit.

GETTING ADDITIONAL HELP

Some of the steps in this process involve the use of a financial planning software package. The information in this document supports the workflow itself, not how to enter the workflow or financial data into any of your firm’s software or systems. For help entering this information into your firm’s software applications, contact the software provider(s).
UNDERSTANDING THE INVESTMENT PLAN CREATION AND REVIEW MEETING WORKFLOW

The first step to understanding a workflow is to understand where it resides in the overall business process. This section shows how the Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting workflow is organized, how it relates to other processes in the workflow series, and provides a view of the process in both graphical and checklist formats.

THE ONBOARD CLIENT WORKFLOW SERIES

Onboarding a new client begins by creating an investment plan. This is often an iterative process that requires multiple drafts and conversations with the client to obtain all the necessary information. The challenge lies in creating a plan that not only meets the needs and goals of the client, but is also realistic based on the current environment, projections, and the information you have received. The Onboard Client workflow processes will help you organize these and related tasks into easy-to-follow workflows that you can implement in your office, helping you streamline the process and improve customer satisfaction.

The Onboard Client process consists of three main workflow components:

- Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting - This process contains the activities and tasks you will need to develop, present, and gain client approval of the financial plan.

- Plan Implementation Meeting – This process contains the activities and tasks you will need to prepare for a successful meeting in which the final details are agreed to and paperwork is signed.

- New Account Setup – This process contains the activities and tasks you will need to streamline and expedite the account-opening process with the online Schwab tools.

Important

This workflow package discusses only the Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting process. Packages for other workflows in this series are addressed in separate documents on SchwabIntelligentTechnologies.com:

- Plan Implementation Meeting
- New Account Setup

PROCESS DIAGRAM

For some, seeing the workflow as a diagram makes the process easier to understand. The diagram, or process map, provides a visual outline of the tasks organized by role and allows you to see the entire process end-to-end with interdependencies. This diagram serves as a best practice recommendation only. Adjustments may be needed to suit the needs of your firm.

Note
Some of the steps in this process involve the use of a financial planning software package.

HIGH-LEVEL PROCESS CHECKLIST

The Investment Plan Creation and Review Meeting process checklist displays the workflow tasks in a checklist format rather than a process map or diagram. The checklist helps you focus on gathering all the information required to complete the workflow effectively. This checklist serves as a best practice recommendation only. Adjustments may be needed to suit the needs of your firm.

Note
Some of the steps in this process involve the use of a financial planning software package.

INVESTMENT PLAN CREATION AND REVIEW MEETING PROCESS OVERVIEW

☐ Conduct the Plan Review Meeting with the client
  • Review the investment plan in detail with the client
  • If the client requests revisions to the investment plan, note all client concerns and/or opportunities for later review
  • If the investment plan requires the addition of new financial accounts, follow the New Account Setup workflow to open the new accounts
  • Discuss next steps with the client

☐ Document the meeting outcome including all relevant agreements, decisions made, concerns, risks, and opportunities

☐ Determine if any updates to the investment plan are needed based on the meeting
  • If adjustments are necessary, make the final adjustments to the plan
  • Approve the final adjustments to the plan
  • If no adjustments are necessary, proceed to the next step

☐ Send a summary letter to the client detailing the events of the meeting and outcome

☐ Schedule the Plan Implementation Meeting with the client

BUILDING CLIENT RELATIONSHIPS

In the section below, the supporting documentation referenced is located on the Schwab Advisor Center website.

Building relationships with your clients is an important part of the client onboarding process. Setting expectations for service and communications early helps drive client satisfaction and lays the foundation for a successful relationship. Use the resources below to learn more about:

- Building Client Relationships Through Effective Communications – understand how to use multiple client communication channels as well as how recognize some of the most critical points in the relationship with your clients.

- Key Strategies for Building Optimal Client Relationships – discusses several ways to get to know your clients as well as deepen your relationship with them through all of your services.
BRINGING NEW CLIENTS ONBOARD AND SERVICING THEM

In the section below, the supporting documentation referenced is located on the Schwab Advisor Center website.

The first few months of your relationship with a new client is a critical time in establishing the tone of the relationship. The resources below will help you onboard new clients:

- Processes for Bringing New Clients Onboard – learn about key points in the first few months of a relationship with a new client that could be critical moments and how to prepare for them.

- The Business of Servicing Clients – learn about the practices and policies of best-managed firms with regard to client service.

Processes for Bringing New Clients Onboard

As you welcome new clients to your firm, you have a critical opportunity to gain their trust and instill confidence that they’ve chosen the right advisor.

The new client’s first few months with your firm will set the tone for your entire relationship. During this period, it is crucial to reinforce and follow through on the promises you made during the sales cycle. Your new clients may be nervous about the major financial change they are making, so you must work to ease their concerns. By building trust at this important stage, you will be more likely to uncover additional assets they may have and turn a new client into a lifetime client.

Start the Relationship Off Right by Managing Expectations

The key to a successful relationship is delivering exactly what the client expects—or more. Get familiar with your client’s expectations right from the start. Ask new clients how often and by what method they would like to hear from you, and give them a sense of your general rhythm of client communication. If you typically call clients once a quarter and the client expects to be called once a month, now is the time to find that out. This is also a good time to reiterate your firm’s planning and investment philosophy.

For example, does the client know that your firm doesn’t try to time the market? If the market declines and you haven’t stated your belief in staying the course, they may blame you for their losses.

Do not fail to address anything; you can assume that whatever expectations you don’t manage will become unmanageable. By discussing the client’s expectations up front, you can preemptively close any gaps and lessen the risk that you’ll unknowingly fail short of their expectations.

The following sections provide suggestions on how to establish a smooth process for bringing new clients on board. Depending on your firm’s philosophy, some or all may be appropriate for you.

The Crucial First Month

New clients should receive a welcome kit when they join your firm. This will be their key resource for everything they need to know about your practice. The welcome kit should include these items:

- Personal letter: Thanking the client for putting their trust in you. Acknowledge that the client is making an important step, and pledge to work together to pursue his or her goals.

- Firm resource sheet: Listing all of your contact information, include contact numbers for relevant members of the firm’s staff.

- Checklist: Outlining information and documents the client must provide, include due dates and how the items should be delivered to you.
